Military REACH Makes Research Accessible & Practical

Do you ever wish you had access to practical research that supported and informed your work with military families? Military REACH, a project of the DoD-USDA Partnership for Military Families, can help you as a military family service provider bridge research and practice.

Military REACH has an amazing staff that develops Research Summaries (TRIP Reports – Translating Research into Practice), Research Briefs and Research Reports on a variety of topics including parenting, deployment, mental health, and children. Search their extensive library at <https://www.militaryreach.auburn.edu/#/>.

We invite you to learn more about Military REACH by participating in the webinar, MILITARY REACH: UTILIZING FAMILY RESEARCH TO INFORM PRACTICE, on January 23, 2019 @ 11:00 am - 12:00 pm EST.

People are Talking About

Book review by Karen Shirer, PhD:

An Interesting Approach to Managing and Leading Your Military Family Services Workgroups or Organizations

MFLN FT New audio series:

Military Spouse Entrepreneur Voices

Please share books read or podcasts listened to so we can list them in future newsletters. Reach out to us at aharris@umn.edu.

Transition Tips

Transitions can be stressful. There is value in referring military service members and their families to Military OneSource's non-medical counseling services.

Sesame Street for Military Families has great transition resources to assist families in the areas of deployments, homecomings, relocations and military to civilian life. Check the provider tab at Sesame Street for Military Families.

A Message From Our Team

A big 'thank you' goes out to Ellie McCann for all of her contributions to the Family Transitions team over the past 4 years. As Ellie transitions off the team, we would like to pause to highlight a few of Ellie's efforts: co-facilitator of the recent webinar "Overindulgence in Parenting: How Much is Too Much?"; creator/interviewer for the 3-part podcast, Intimate Insight into the Reintegration Experience of an Active Duty Air Force Couple; and co-presenter of the FACTS of Resilience podcast.

MFLN welcomes Jennifer Garbow to the Family Transitions team. Jennifer is an Extension Educator with the U of MN Extension and the mother of a Navy sailor.

Find out more about Jennifer in 2019!

Participants are saying...

"I am going to share the resources with the other USCG transition managers and program managers and publish the information on my website and social media pages."

"I plan to review the information and check out the hyperlinks and resources in order to learn more so that I am able to be of assistance to military spouses that come into the office."
