Spouse Employment and Career Opportunities

Military families encounter unique life experiences that potentially affect a military spouse's career and income, impacting the family's financial resilience. Employment challenges like frequent moves, deployments, extended duty hours, isolated duty stations, limited childcare availability, and lack of extended family support can have long-term consequences on the spouse's career progression.

Working with military families, it is important for Personal Financial Managers (PFMs) to understand available options for military spouses. The Spouse Education and Career Opportunities (SECO) program provides access to education and career guidance, comprehensive resources, and tools to assist spouses in overcoming career challenges through.

As a support component of SECO, the Military OneSource Spouse Career Center offers free, comprehensive coaching services to eligible military spouses, with a variety of specialized coaching packages available in areas such as entrepreneurship, re-entering the workforce, health care, intelligence and cyber security, K-12 education, and more. Additionally, the Military Spouse Employment Partnership connects military spouses with hundreds of employers who have committed to recruit, hire, promote and retain military spouses in portable careers.

For more information on spouse employment and family financial readiness, join OneOp Personal Finance for our upcoming webinar on April 5. In this webinar, Mr. C. Eddy Mentzer, Program Manager for SECO, will provide PFMs available options and best practices for engaging military families in these services, while taking time to answer questions from service providers.
