2022 Military Family Readiness Academy Series

The 2022 Military Family Readiness Academy series, Family Well-Being: Navigating the Social Just Landscape, focuses on individuals' understanding of social justice and equity, including their own understanding of privilege and oppression.

Asynchronous courses and live panel discussions will equip family service providers with the skills to identify barriers that impact a family's health and well-being and identify opportunities for social justice advocacy in their work. The Academy series will address the intersections between engaging a social justice mindset as a family service professional and the ability to support the well-being of diverse military families.

Course 1: Introduction to Social Justice Lenses for Family Well-Being This course explores a social justice lens through which family service providers can view prohibitive barriers that negatively impact family well-being.

Course 2: Family Service Providers: Recognizing and Responding to Inequities This course addresses how family service providers can learn to identify and assess impediments to family well-being through a social justice lens and give learners ways of responding to institutional discrimination as it appears in organizational policy and in the management and practice of human services.

Course 3: Social Justice and Military Families The final course of the series addresses the specific work of social justice advocacy among family service providers, in the context of military families and their health and well-being. Incorporating both a personal and professional lens, participants will examine the concept of belonging and inclusion through a framework of self-care, healing, and resilience.

OneOp is currently seeking approval of 1.5 continuing education (CE) credits for each Academy course and panel.
