Virtual Conference Session #3

Creative Visual Language for Insight and Problem Solving

Explore your work and your world in a new and creative way!

As you learn about networks and some key concepts such as relationship building and innovation, it can be helpful to embrace creativity in your work, even if (especially if) your jobs and organizations may not be perceived as creative endeavors and spaces. Join Sunni Brown, best-selling author and global “infodoodler” to unlock your native capacity to create and apply visual language for better thinking and faster problem-solving. This session will take you from the basics of visual language to a form of rapid visual thinking that supports the creativity and effective communication you will use as a networked, collaborative professional. Use “infodoodling” to learn more effectively, activate insights, and clarify complexity. Information visualization helps you explore your work and world in an entirely different way. Skeptics, non-artists, and people who don’t identify as creative will fit right in.
