

Supporting Military Youth with Disabilities in Transition to Adult Life

ABOUT THIS WEBINAR

Join us for an insightful webinar presented by experts from the U.S. Department of Education, featuring specialists from the Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services (OSERS) and partner organizations. This session will provide valuable resources to support youth with disabilities and their families as they navigate the transition from Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) services to post-secondary life. Participants will learn about essential tools and guidance designed to help youth with disabilities succeed in education, employment, and independent living after aging out of IDEA services. Don't miss this opportunity to connect with resources that can empower families and service providers to ensure successful transitions for youth with disabilities.

Learning Objectives

In this webinar, participants will:

- Review key resources to assist youth with disabilities, their families, and service providers in making informed decisions about post-secondary education and career options.
- Identify specific supports and services needed for transition-aged youth with disabilities and their families, particularly during a permanent change of duty station.
- Gain strategies for empowering youth, families, and service providers to navigate post-secondary planning and transitions, whether in military or civilian contexts.
