Dr. Sabrina Richardson, Department Of Defense, The Millennium Cohort Study of Adolescent Resilience (SOAR) Researcher

The Military Family Readiness Academy is a comprehensive series designed to support service providers working with military families. This year, the 2025 Academy will address the critical issue of adolescent well-being. Academy learners can dive into the issues impacting adolescents in active-duty military families while identifying strategies and resources to better support youth.

The Academy includes a live interactive panel discussion and three interdisciplinary webinars led by military-connected youth experts. Over six weeks, the Academy will deliver professional development programs to equip service providers with the skills to support positive youth development.
